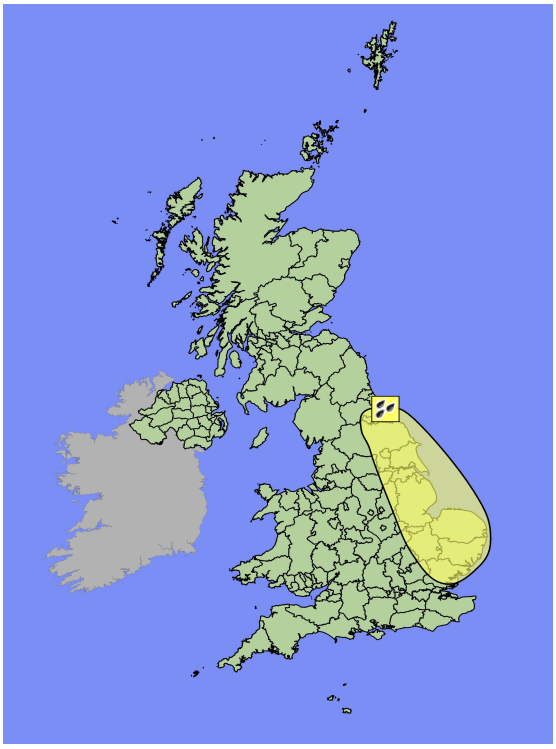
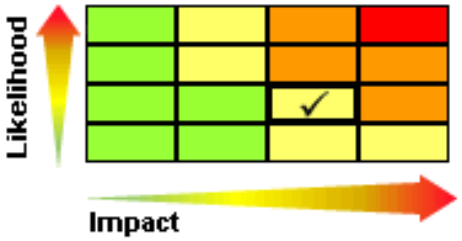
National Severe Weather Warning Service





Chief Forecasters Assessment
A slack area of low pressure will continue to drift southeast from northern England into the North Sea by early afternoon. It will bring with it areas of locally heavy rain, whilst showers will break out later in the morning and into the afternoon. There is the risk of 15-25 mm of rain in an hour locally, though many areas will miss the worst.

The Met Office have issued a Yellow Warning of Rain

Valid from 06:00 on Thu, 30th Aug 2012 until 15:00 on Thu, 30th Aug 2012

Heavy rain moving south over eastern England will turn more showery by this afternoon, with locally strong winds as well as thunder and lightning expected in places. The public should be aware of the risk of localised surface water flooding.
